P R E F A C E .

IN compliance with the wishes of many Subscribers, who argue that the publication of the Calendar at short intervals would be more convenient, the present Supplement has been prepared. In introducing it, little more need be said, than that it has been arranged on much the same plan as its predecessor, only that from the greater, as later, interest attached to them, all the Chases have been given in full. In other features it is necessarily similar to the first volume, regarding the reception of which, the Editor may perhaps be pardoned a word or so, less on his own account, than that of the work he has been engaged in. From various quarters, through the publisher and otherwise, it has been his pleasure to find the good word bestowed upon his labours, and generally from those best qualified to give it. For the RULES AND REGULATIONS more particularly, he can boast of the most unqualified approval from the very highest quarters; amongst others, the Stewards of the last Windsor Chases, who decided the objection to the winner of the Grand Handicap avowedly by the eighth Rule of the Calendar, and thus established the whole as an authority, that it may be not unimportant to make more generally known.

To the gentlemen who have as courteously as ably favoured him with their assistance, the Editor has again to return his grateful acknowledgments, while in the approved fashion of thanking for favours, he takes the opportunity of asking for more. Regular returns of Sport in all parts of the United Kingdom, with "the Names, Weights, and Colours of the Riders," and, may he add, a little more attention to the number of Subscribers, will be as acceptable as ever; suggestions as to improvement received in the same good spirit which forwards them, and the correction of error acted upon, if not with pleasure, at least with a full sense of the compliment and attention.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the existence of solutions of the system of equations (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

2. In the second part of the paper the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β is solved. It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

3. In the third part of the paper the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β is solved. It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

4. In the fourth part of the paper the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β is solved. It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

5. In the fifth part of the paper the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β is solved. It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

6. In the sixth part of the paper the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β is solved. It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

7. In the seventh part of the paper the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β is solved. It is shown that the system (1) has solutions for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β if and only if the condition $\alpha + \beta = 1$ is satisfied.

LONDON :

PRINTED BY JOSEPH ROGERSON, 24, NORFOLK-STREET, STRAND.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE

THE EARL OF STRATHMORE

AND KINGHORN,

MY LORD,

A reference to the following pages will show how appropriately and favourably they are introduced. The best argument, perhaps, the advocate for the Steeple Chase could find would be your Lordship's career through the past season—a patronage not confined to name or the mere passive pleasure of the spectator, but extending to active participation in the sport itself. With, moreover, a result that stamps the Steeple Chase at once as a pastime in which the English gentleman may not only indulge, but excel—as one where success implies the presence of the greatest courage, temper, and skill—and where even defeat becomes honourable from the personal prowess and distinguished merit to which it now so often succumbs.

It is, too, by such active influence as your Lordship's that the prejudice against the Steeple Chase will gradually decline. The purest of fox-hunters will begin to hesitate ere they condemn a sport which numbers so many of the best men from their own ranks, and which advances in every way their one favoured pursuit. The prizes given in Steeple Chasing are nothing more nor less than premiums for producing the most perfect hunters ; as the fame which awaits the gentleman rider who can prove his ability by such a test, is both the incentive and the means for making superior horsemen.

Anything bravely attempted is sure to command the sympathy of the public ; your Lordship's triumphs have consequently been a source of general satisfaction. That they will in their effect and example tend much to benefit the sport, all admit ; while that they may continue as they have commenced is the earnest desire of many, and of none more sincerely than of

Your Lordship's greatly honoured,

Obliged, and very humble Servant,

HENRY CORBET.

THE SPORTING REVIEW;

A Monthly Journal of the Turf, the Chase, and Rural Sports in all their varieties.

Nine years ago this work was started for the purpose of giving to the National Sports of this country an organ worthy their national importance and popularity. It took the field with a corps of contributors—veterans of experience and skill in the departments to which they attached themselves. For the first time, the details of the chase were treated of by masters of hounds; members of the Jockey Club wrote about the Turf; the most eminent of our amateur sailors discussed yachting; the leash, the trigger—all our rural pastimes—were dealt with by men of acknowledged authority. Under such auspices its apprenticeship was passed; and the public voice has bestowed on it the character of a “good and faithful servant.” In that capacity it discharges the grateful duty of offering its acknowledgments for favours heretofore awarded, and ventures to hope for a continuance of that success which it will be its earnest effort to endeavour to deserve. No periodical in any branch of literature is more characteristically represented by those who contribute to its pages; no journal is more beautifully embellished: none more carefully constituted, with reference to the treatment of popular and seasonable subjects. In the course it has so long run, its race will be continued. It will keep a steady pace—ever make play when fitting opportunity occurs. On the first of every month it will be found at the post, as its trainer brought it out from the commencement of its career, sightly to look at, with plenty of good stuff about it, sound wind and limb, and eager to strain every sinew for the prize of public approbation.

N.B.—Vol. XVIII., with thirteen Steel Engravings, is just out, price 16s. 6d., handsomely bound in Cloth, and may be had of every Bookseller in the Kingdom.

Published monthly, price Half-a-Crown, at the “Sporting Review” Office, 24, Norfolk-street, Strand, London, where all communications for the Editor, and works for review, should be addressed.

FIELD SPORT; AS IT WAS, AND AS IT IS.

Perhaps in all that advancement and improvement which has and does characterize "the days we live in," no part or parcel of the whole has continued to progress more favourably than our sports and pastimes. Field sport has gradually reached its acmé of excellence. Its objections have vanished quite in proportion as its recommendations have increased: and thus, taking its hue from the spirit of the age, it has become a pursuit that tends to refine as it essays to amuse. The brutalities and excesses too long attached to "the gentleman's recreations" have happily passed into tradition: the very eccentricities of the order are now seldom observable, while the highest ardour is allowed to be compatible with the nicest discretion. The sportsman, in fact, no longer forces his theme forth as the great toe of society; but has shown that the best men, as in many other spheres, are often the least intrusive, and that accomplishments and abilities are never so successful as when they travel together. The man who can lead in a run shall shine equally at a court; and the handicapper of the high-mettled have a voice in the House and a weight in the scale.

On these terms it is that "The Sporting Magazine" claims to represent that interest it has so long and so zealously studied. To stand on its committee, the Proprietors feel that "the sportsman" and "the gentleman" are titles that should ring the changes well on each other; and while they put forth "the practical" as the great feature in their entertainment, they still think that the solid cannot be but improved by the embellishment of the scholar, or the seasoning of the humourist. The proof of this pudding they gladly leave to the eating, confident that the distinguished artistes engaged can furnish a variety that shall combine the strength of the substantial with the sometimes more catching arguments of lighter matériel.

To enter here on any minute detail of the plan of the work would be both tedious and superfluous; sufficient be it to say that a certain portion of the Magazine is devoted to a succession of periodical papers that have a freshness on their immediate publication, and an interest, in the way of reference, for any later period. Amongst these may be named "The Racing for the Month," when Craven attends as the authority for pen, and Herring, sen., for pencil—"The Hand-book of the Chase," "The Amusements of the Month," "Sporting Intelligence," "Literature," "State of the Odds," and "Diary for the Month," all fully described and marked with that stamp an unbiassed consideration of their merits has awarded them. With the more occasional contributions it has been the aim to work as far as possible in accordance with the seasons, and so let the subjects turn on the Trigger, the Rod, the Leash, the Yacht, or the Bat, when they may hit hardest and be of most service.

"The Sporting Magazine," beautifully illustrated with Steel Engravings by Hacker, Scott, Beckwith, and others, after Paintings by Cooper, R.A., Herring, Sen., Hancock, Bateman, Harvey, Hall, Spaulding, and Davis, is published Monthly by PITTMAN, Warwick-square, London. Price Half-a-Crown. May be had of all Booksellers.

THE MARK LANE EXPRESS, AGRICULTURAL JOURNAL, AND TENANT FARMERS' ADVOCATE,

Is the Largest and the Leading Farmers' and Graziers' Newspaper, published every Monday Evening in time for post.

TENANT RIGHT.—In times when the position of the Tenant Farmers has been one of great difficulty, THE MARK LANE EXPRESS AND AGRICULTURAL JOURNAL, has ever been directed to the advocacy and support of THE RIGHTS OF THE TENANT FARMERS. In stating this, it is not intended to lose sight of that noble principle which the great Lord Leicester so successfully followed; viz., that liberal conduct towards the Tenant will ever be found to be the most beneficial to the Landlord.

The object of the Proprietors has ever been to render it in every way the most efficient organ of the Agricultural Class, to collect and diffuse practical and scientific information of all kinds relating to rural affairs.

Office, 24, Norfolk-street, Strand, London. May be had of all Booksellers.

PATRONIZED BY HER MOST GRACIOUS
MAJESTY THE QUEEN

AND
HER ROYAL HIGHNESS
THE DUCHESS OF KENT.

WILLIS'S MIRIFIC BALSAM, FOR BEAUTIFYING, CLEANSING, AND PROMOTING THE GROWTH OF THE HAIR.

W. WILLIS, in claiming attention to the above Important Discovery, which has attained such general patronage both at home and abroad—where its efficacy in promoting a re-growth of the Hair, and the effectual removal of dandriff, has been attended with unparalleled results—presumes to offer a few remarks on its origin. "Cleanliness," says an old proverb and a very true one—"Cleanliness is next to Godliness;" a very virtue, in the absence of which all the much prized attractions of social life become but little enticing, if not indeed actually offensive. That the beauty of the Hair is considered a paramount personal attraction cannot be denied; but how often do we find that, by the injurious resort to cheap, common, and worse than useless compositions, the most baneful results ensue! From the aid of such ill-advised allies it too often happens that the first of Beauty's attributes, the Hair, becomes neglected in depression and despair, or tortured into form and texture absolutely monstrous; an appearance raising a smile of contempt or sigh of sorrow, where all should have been admiration and regard. A continual observance of this, a thorough knowledge of every particular connected with it, and a careful and zealous study of the cause and cure, have produced the Mirific Balsam, a happy combination of the useful and ornamental, that must be applied to be appreciated, and to be appreciated—applauded. That such has been the result, the Inventor has only to refer to the exalted patronage with which he has been honoured, and, further, to the daily increasing demand thereof by the Nobility, Gentry, &c., &c.; an increase which imperatively demands, and for which he now begs to offer, his most sincere and heartfelt thanks.

THE RULES OF STEEPLE CHASING.

 The following rules were drawn out by the Editor on the first appearance of the work in 1843, and have since been very generally acted on. They are now reprinted, at the request of many subscribers to the Calendar.*

THE aim, object, and practice of Steeple Chasing correspond in the main features so exactly with Racing, that the same Rules and Regulations have generally been found equally applicable to either sport; in some minor particulars, however, the Laws of the Steeple Chase differ or go farther than such as have hitherto been deemed amply sufficient for flat-racing, and the following suggestions have consequently been drawn together from the usual articles appended to Steeple Chase announcements, or from decisions given on disputed points.

1. Any rider during a chase going upwards of one hundred yards on any high road, lane, or public thoroughfare, will, in the event of his coming in first, so disqualify his horse from being considered the winner, on an objection to that effect being substantiated.

2. Any rider during a chase opening any gate or wicket, or passing through any gateway, or purposed and common passage from one inclosure to another, will so disqualify his horse, though placed first, from being considered the winner.

3. Any rider wilfully crossing, jostling, riding at, or driving another from his point while going at a fence, will be disqualified on such a charge being proved by two or more competent witnesses.

4. Any flag, post, or boundary mark placed in the course—no matter by whose order—after the riders have been shown over the ground, or the line pointed out and explained to them, not to be considered binding or of any effect, unless such alteration or addition shall have been particularly named, previous to starting, to all engaged in the chase, by the Steward, Clerk, or some other generally acknowledged and authorized person.

5. In the event of two or more horses running a dead heat, and their owners agreeing to a division of the stakes or plate, a formal walk over the course, as in flat-racing, shall not be deemed necessary, but every horse participating in any such division, to be considered, and carry extra weight henceforth, as a winning horse.

6. Conditions using merely the term "Winning Horses" in reference to those liable to extra weight, to be considered as applying only to winners of public steeple chases, advertised or announced as such; and no winner of hurdle or flat races, or match of any kind, to be considered liable to carry the extra weight as a winner, unless words to that effect shall be fully specified in the articles.

7. The term "Maiden Horse" to be considered applicable to any horse which never won a steeple chase, and a "horse that never started," to one which never started for a steeple chase.

8. The term "Gentlemen Riders," if used solely, a custom that should be carefully avoided, to apply or allude only to persons generally received in society as gentlemen; Members of the London leading Clubs, Fox-hunting or Racing Clubs, Officers in the Army or Navy, Barristers, Solicitors, Medical Men, or others so considered by position and profession, and who do not and never have been in the habit of receiving remuneration for riding, either directly or in form of travelling expenses, or any other indirect manner.

9. Any rider falling from or suffering his horse to get away from him, to be at liberty to remount in any part of the same field or inclosure in which the accident occurred; but should his horse not be caught until he had entered another field, then to be ridden or brought back to the one in which he parted with his rider. Any jockey so losing his horse may be assisted in catching and remounting by the spectators, or any other person engaged in the chase, without risk of disqualification; and in the event of a rider being disabled, his horse may be ridden home and take his place the same, by any person of sufficient weight, providing he mount or go back to the same field the first rider fell in.

10. The state of the weather and the ground, in the event of any doubt as to the fitness or safety of running, to be left entirely to the discretion of the Stewards, who may order the chase or chases to be then and there decided as originally fixed, or postponed according to the best of their judgment—all engagements standing, whether decided or put off, just as when first subscribed to ; save only with regard to bets, which shall not stand (except by mutual agreement) unless the chase on which they were made) be decided on some day in the same week for which it was first fixed ; or on some other day named in the original conditions of the chase.

The following General Rules apply equally to Racing and Steeple Chasing :—

FOR STAKES OR PLATES DECIDED IN HEATS.—When three horses have each won a heat they only can start for the fourth, and in which there is no distance ; a dead heat goes for nothing, unless it be between two horses that had already each won a heat ; when a plate is won at two heats every horse takes his proper place as he ran in for the second ; for the best of the race or chase for which three heats are run, the horse is second that wins one heat ; while for the best of the heats, the horse is second that beats the other horse twice out of the three heats, even if he should not win a heat ; bets made on a chase run in heats are not decided until the chase be also, except it be specified that the bet was laid on one certain heat ; bets made after a heat are void, if the horse or horses betted on be drawn ; and all horses so drawn before the event is decided are distanced.

FOR WEIGHTS.—Catch and feather weights exonerate the riders from weighing either before or after the chase. “Give and take weights” are fixing a certain weight on horses 14 hands high, while all above carry extra at the rate of 7lb. for every inch; and all under are allowed in the same proportion. Jockeys to ride their horses to the appointed place for weighing, and any who dismount before arriving at or opposite the scales are distanced, unless disabled by accident or fatigue, when they may be led or carried. Complaints of foul riding or any objections to or allegations of acts committed during the chase which would cause disqualification, to be made at the time of weighing, to the Steward or Stewards, Judge, Clerk of the Chase, or some other person in authority. In weight for age chases, horses starting without producing a proper certificate of their age (if required) to carry the same weight as aged horses. All horses distanced that do not bring in their proper weight, to make up which their shoes or plates will not be taken, neither their bridles, or any other article the jockey omitted to take in with him, should his horse be led away previous to his calling for it.

FOR BETS AND STAKES.—Bets and stakes made in guineas are paid in pounds ; bets made between two particular horses are void if neither win, or if made on the best of the race between the two also void should neither of them be placed by the judge ; a party laying odds has the choice of a horse or the field ; “play or pay” bets are such as are decided whether a horse start or not, and all double events are “play or pay,” as are bets on horses mounted and gone to the post ; bets are off on the horses on which they were made becoming the property of the same person, party, or confederates ; and bets may be declared off on either of the parties refusing to make stakes on being called upon to do so ; but no confirmed bet can be declared off on any other ground without the mutual consent of the parties making it ; bets on horses disqualified through some omission in or act annulling the entry or nomination are void, except in cases where horses so disqualified start, when bets are determined as the horses come in ; bets made by sign or signal on a chase after it has been decided, or on a horse after he has been declared not to start, are void ; bets made between horses that run a dead heat and divide, must be taken in the same proportion as the stakes ; and if a bet be made on one of the horses running the dead heat against another beaten in the chase, the backer of the former wins half his bet ; if the dead heat be the first of a double event, or occur in running a match, all bets on such are void. All stakes to be paid to the clerk or treasurer before starting, or not entitled to receive though coming in first, yet still liable for the whole stakes as beaten horses ; on the other hand, bets made on such horses stand and are decided as the horse or horses are placed, the carelessness or culpability of the owner or manager not affecting the mere betting by others on his horse. Any person entering his horse in the name of another, or one altogether false and fictitious, will be equally liable to the stake or forfeit as if entered in his own, and to any consequences or penalties that may arise from such engagements not being paid.
